ARGENTIUM SILVER

UNTARNISHED BY TIME

NEW

Silver, a precious metal valued for its beauty and white lustre, is experiencing a transformation the like of which has not been seen in thousands of years, thanks to a British discovery called ARGENTIUM SILVER. This precious metal sets a new standard in the purity, strength and tarnish resistance of silver for use in jewellery, watches and silverware.

Cookson Precious Metals has entered into a partnership with Argentium International to produce and distribute Argentium worldwide.

THE “MAGIC” OF ARGENTIUM SILVER

- Stronger:
Harder than traditional sterling silver, meaning more durable silver jewellery and silverware
- Versatile:
Strength enables new designs and innovation that was not practicable with traditional sterling silver
- White:
Rich, natural lustre is always evident and it is not disfigured by tarnish
- Tarnish resistant:
Means less polishing and maintenance for consumers

We set out to create a spectacular and unique silver 'life style' brand, that could be offered for sale around the country. Not only have our plans been realised, but they have been truly enhanced thanks to Argentium Silver. Our organic and beautiful designs have come to life in Argentium. Thanks to its high tarnish resistance, we don't have the need to use any form of plating. We are delighted to have discovered Argentium Silver and its wonderful benefits!

THE 'MAGIC' INGREDIENT GERMANIUM

Argentium Silver contains Germanium which gives it its unique qualities: it is purer, whiter, stronger, harder and more versatile than traditional silver and is highly tarnish resistant. Argentium Silver was discovered in 1991 by Peter Johns, the renowned Master Silversmith, at Middlesex University.

COOKSON PRECIOUS METALS Sponsoring British Silver Week 2009

British Silver Week makes a welcome return this June with a typically impressive programme of events celebrating silversmithing in all its forms, supported by a glittering array of leading industry names and new, cutting-edge work by the UK's best young silversmiths. Cookson Precious Metals are immensely proud once more to be Corporate Sponsors for this important series of events.

Fred Rich

Don Porritt

Many well known silversmiths are confirmed for British Silver Week, including the acclaimed Malcolm Appleby, Clive Burr, Wally Gilbert, Brett Payne, Hiroshi Suzuki, Junko Mori and Fred Rich, all of whom are exhibiting for their second successive year. British Silver Week 2009 has also attracted its largest-ever number of talented new UK silver designer-makers.

British Silver Week 2009

Nationwide British Silver Week Exhibitions

Extending British Silver Week around the UK, Some 22 venues round the country have already been confirmed to hold special exhibitions, the highlight of which is a month-long (June 8 to July 5) exhibition at Chatsworth House, home of the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire.

Through the generosity of the Duke, a renowned silver collector, an exhibition will be staged in Chatsworth's Grand Dining Hall. It will feature work by 12 of the UK's finest modern silversmiths in addition to selected pieces from the Pearson Collection, one of Britain's largest privately owned collections of modern silversmithing.

Demonstrations and talks by leading local silversmiths are also planned.

CASH IN NOW WITH YOUR SCRAP!

Cookson has over 10 years experience in melting and assaying. The process used to treat your scrap is the same as we use in the production of our alloys.

Our dedicated Scrap departments give you the assurance of a personal service with responsibility for the security of your metal.

All our charges are shown clearly on our receipt reflecting the full melting, assaying and refining service we provide.

We clearly state on your receipt the quantity of any of the four elements found: Gold, Silver, Platinum and Palladium.

How do I get my scrap to Cookson?

To ensure your scrap is safely returned to us we have four methods of collection:

- 1. Collect your scrap in our free scrap pot, then simply post it back to your local Cookson Branch in Birmingham or London.
- 2. Ask for a free special delivery envelope, to ensure your scrap is safely returned to Cookson - call 0845 100 1122
- 3. Drop your scrap into any one of our trade counters, located in Birmingham's Jewellery Quarter and Hatton Garden in London.
- 4. For larger scrap collections simply call to arrange an on-site visit from one of our representatives.

Silversmithing Stakes

Stakes

Made from steel and used with various hammers to form/shape metal. Metal is placed over the appropriate stake and hammered to achieve the shape required. The stake can either be clamped independently into a vice or used with a 'Horse Stake'.

A stake can be altered in shape (should an adjustment be required) by filing and then polishing. All stakes should be kept clean and polished as any marks will be transferred to the surface being worked upon.

Used to reduce the gauge, or change the shape of metal. The change of shape will be dependant upon the shape of the grooves in the rollers. Both flat plate & rollers are used to reduce the gauge in a gradual process. Metal should be annealed between each stage of rolling.

The distance between the rollers is reduced and enlarged by turning a wheel on top of the mill. On the wheel is a dial gauge for precise rolling gap measurement.

The rollers are made of a high quality steel. Rollers should be kept clean and mark free - marks on the roller will be transferred to the metals surface as it is rolled through the plates. The mill should be secured to a surface, preferably by a free standing mill stand.
